4 beer or vegetable momos | tomato tarkari | fried onions | chili crisps

They come from deep within the mountain regions of Nepal and Tibet – small, steaming, and full of flavor: momos. These stuffed dumplings are much more than just street food. They are a piece of home, a family ritual, a scent that wafts through the alleys of Kathmandu.

Our momos are traditionally shaped by hand and lovingly filled with juicy beef or spicy vegetables.

Papaya Salad

Iceberg lettuce | tomatoes | red onions | cucumbers | sesame dressing
peanuts | cilantro

Forget the classic green version—this salad brings out the sweet side of papaya. Juicy, ripe papaya meets sesame dressing, fresh herbs, and a hint of Asian spice.

Tonkotsu Ramen

Pork belly | spring onions | pak choi | sesam seeds | egg

A flavor that tells stories: Tonkotsu ramen originates from southern Japan, from Fukuoka Prefecture, and has established itself worldwide as a symbol of hearty ramen enjoyment. Our broth is cooked for hours from pork bones until it develops its characteristic creamy richness. Full-bodied, deep, and intense.

Topped with tender braised pork belly, aromatic egg, spring onions, and fine ramen noodles.

Phở Gà

Chicken | mung bean sprouts | corn | pak choi | chili crisps | fried onions

Light, fragrant, soul-warming—phở gà is Vietnam's gentle start to the day. In the alleys of Hanoi, the morning often begins with this very chicken soup: a clear broth, simmered for hours with chicken bones, ginger, and onions.

Tender strips of chicken, ribbon noodles, and fresh herbs lend each spoonful freshness and balance.

Two kinds of Mochi

Chocolate | coconut | pineapple sesame salad

Soft, delicate, and surprising—mochi is Japan's answer to the perfect dessert. Wrapped in fine rice flour dough, these little balls are not just a sweet treat, but an experience: velvety, cool, and wonderfully chewy. Every bite is like a whisper from the Far East.
